

Call for Nominations
ISETL Distinguished Fellows
By Ken Klopfenstein
Colorado State University

The International Society for Exploring Teaching and Learning has a storied history of recognizing its most distinguished members with the designation "Distinguished Fellow," the highest honor it can bestow upon an individual member. Current Distinguished Fellows of the Society are:

Samuel N. Postlethwait, Professor Emeritus, Purdue University
Joseph E. J. Habowsky, University of Windsor (retired)
Charles Wales, West Virginia University (deceased)
Kenneth F. Klopfenstein, Colorado State University
Jean E. Wold, California State University (retired)
Donald Borchardt, Rutgers University (retired)
Robert A. Stager, University of Windsor (retired)
A. Jeanne Miller, University of Central Florida
Eunice L. Krinsky, California State University

All Society members are invited to nominate Society members for the Distinguished Fellow designation. Criteria for recognition as a Distinguished Fellow are that candidates shall have:

- (a) a documented record of ongoing involvement with the implementation, evaluation, development, promotion, and/or improvement of alternative teaching strategies in a post-secondary setting,
- (b) active participation in the Society for several years, and
- (c) made significant contributions in at least one of the above areas.

Please submit a nomination letter as an e-mail attachment to Bruce Saulnier, ISETL President, no later than April 1st, 2003 to bruce.saulnier@quinnipiac.edu. Included in your nomination letter should be (1) the name and current affiliation of your nominee and (2) how the nominee has met the criteria.
